The Carroll Institute takes great pleasure in presenting this Catalogue of its Library to the members and friends of the association. Its publication was undertaken at considerable expenditure of labor and money, in the hope that it would not only give readers material assistance in the selection of desirable, choice books, but also furnish benefactors of the Library an idea of the number of works so far collected. The Institute aims to collect all Catholic publications and the most approved among secular works, and it respectfully solicits from its friends donations of books, pamphlets, magazines, etc., not already in the Library. Please send to THE CARROLL INSTITUTE, No. 602 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

INTRODUCTION.

The idea of forming the society which has since become the Carroll Institute originated with Major Edmond Mallet while President of the Young Catholics' Friend Society of Washington. The primitive purpose was to form an organization as an adjunct to the Young Catholics' Friend Society, which should contribute to the interest of its meetings, and from which talent might be drawn for that purpose. A preliminary meeting was held in the basement of Carroll Hall, then used by St. Patrick's congregation as a church, on Sunday evening, September 7, 1873.

It was determined at that meeting, after mature consideration, to organize an independent association, instead of an auxiliary society, to be called the Carroll Literary Association. An election of officers was held on the following Thursday evening, September eleventh. Captain Daniel McMahon was elected President, and the late much-lamented John Carroll Brent, Librarian.

An appeal was then made to the members for donations of books to form the nucleus of a library. Soon after this Mr. Brent, who was the President of the Particular Council, St. Vincent de Paul Society, placed the library of that association, consisting of about three hundred volumes, including pamphlets, in the custody of the new society and for its use.

On February 5, 1874, Rev. John J. Keane, now Bishop of Richmond, Va., as chairman of the Library Committee, issued a circular to the Catholic citizens of Washington, soliciting donations of books and money, to increase the library. As a result of this appeal a considerable number of books was received.

On May 7, 1874, a new constitution was adopted and the title of the association changed to CARROLL INSTITUTE, in honor of Most Rev. John Carroll, first Archbishop of Baltimore, Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and Daniel Carroll one of the commissioners appointed by President Washington to lay out the national capital. Lieut.-Colonel Alex. J. Dallas, U. S. A., was elected President, and Mr. Edmond Mallet, Librarian of the Institute.

A valuable acquisition to the library was soon after realized in the donation by the Masi family of several hundred volumes. During the presidency of Mr. John Bingham, with Mr. James McEvoy as Librarian, large additions were made by purchase and exchange, as also under the administrations of Messrs. John T. Fallon and Dominic I. Murphy, with Mr. Charles McCarthy as Librarian. During the terms of Mr. Ed. J. Hannan, with Mr. M. W. Saxton as Librarian, the library has been further increased and systematized until now it contains upward of two thousand standard Catholic and secular works.

Whilst the above periods of the library's history are particularized, yet during all the administrations of the Institute the addition of appropriate and valuable books has received a due share of attention.

Among the Institute's many friends who have at various times donated valuable books, the following deserve especial mention: Rt. Rev. J. J. Keane, Rev. Jacob A. Walter, Mr. Francis B. Mohun, Mr. Joshua Huntington, Miss Anna E. Smith, Miss Fannie Whelan, Mr. Thomas W. Dalton, Mr. George Bogus, Mr. D. A. Brosnan, Mr. Thomas McEnery, and Mr. Gregory I. Ennis.

M. W. SAXTON, Librarian.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

This Catalogue is arranged in all cases under the names of authors, when known. Bodies of men have been considered as authors of works written officially and published in their names, or by their authority: thus, the Catholic Church has been considered author of works emanating from the Holy See, the Councils and the Hierarchy of the Church, and the United States of works issued by its several Departments of Government. The publications of congregations, orders and societies have been entered under those bodies as authors; those of local societies, however, being entered under the name of the place where located.

Anonymous works have been entered under the first word of their titles, except in the case of anonymous biographies, which have been entered under the name of the subject of the life.

Form-entries have been made in the case of Almanacs, Magazines and Newspapers with references to their title-entries; also analytical-entries for important articles, addresses, etc., contained in magazines, pamphlets and newspapers in the library, produced by honorary and active members of the Institute, whose names are printed in special type.

The employment of capital letters in the titles has been confined to proper names, and to the initial letter of each sentence.

The following abbreviations have been employed:

Amer.	American.	n. d.	No date of publication.
anon.	Anonymous.	n. p.	No place of publication.
ed.	Edition.	pp.	Pages.
f ^o .	Folio.	pseud.	Pseudonym. Pseudony-
4 ^o .	Quarto.		mous.
12 ^o .	Duodecimo.	n. t.-p.	No title-page.
illus.	Illustrated.	t.-p. w.	Title-page wanting.
ms.	Manuscript.	v.	Volume.

The books are described as folio, quarto, duodecimo, etc., according to the apparent size of the volume, without regard to the printer's designations derived from the fold of the sheets.
